

Robin Kerbel Personal Biography

Robin Kerbel is a co-founder of Six Degrees Medical Consulting and holds the position of COO. A communication strategist with over 20 years of experience, Robin Kerbel specializes in developing innovative programs for pharmaceutical, healthcare and biotech companies, aimed at maximizing the potential value of their products.

Robin has worked extensively with these organizations providing strategic counsel in the areas of key opinion leader development, continuing education and investigator education, public relations, medical communications and advocacy development, to a broad portfolio of domestic and international healthcare accounts.

Over the past few years, Robin has focused her work in a number of therapeutic areas including infectious diseases, hemostasis, cardiovascular disease and diabetes, oncology, kidney disease and pain management. As a result, she has garnered a wide circle of working relationships with senior level healthcare professionals around the world. Robin has been responsible for leading numerous national and global communications teams, working with affiliates, advocacy groups and KOLs, to deliver annual communications objectives.

Prior to starting up Six Degrees Medical Consulting, Robin held senior positions with Axon Medical Communications, where she was partner, and Hill and Knowlton, where she led the Canadian healthcare practice.
